ALVA H KIRK,

Manufacturer of and Dealer in all kinds of

MILL FURNISHINGS

SOLE MANUFACTURER OF

Kirk's Improved Middlings Purifier,

Now acknowledged the best in the market. My device for cleaning cloth, recently invented, is far superior to any now in use. It keeps the cloth at all times as clean as when first put on, and with the least wear upon the cloth of any device.

N. B—This is no Advertising Dodge.

A correspondence with the following named well known millers of Minneapolis will convince you of the truth of my claims, viz.:

D. R. BARBER & SON, Cataract Mill.
E. V. WHITE & CO., Standard Mill.
CAHILL, FLETCHER & CO., Galaxy Mill.

My machine is well made, of good material, and I have left out no improvement that would make it, as I design, the

VERY BEST

IN THE MARKET.

It now has one-third more capacity than any other machine with the same cloth surface, and is in operation in many mills alongside of the most widely advertised machines, and doing as good work as the best of them, and some of our leading millers have told me even better.

Am also patentee and manufacturer of a Millstone Bail that is absolutely unequaled for perfection of service.

MANUFACTURER,

Bolting Chests, Scalping Reels, Curbs, Elevators, Conveyors, Fill Gears, make Wood Pulleys, etc.

KEEP IN STOCK,

Reel Arms and Ribs, Conveyor Flights, Journal Boxes, Mill Pick Handles, Conveyor Shafts, etc.

AGENT FOR,

All kinds of Wheat Cleaning Machinery, Rolls and Granulators, Turbine Water Wheels and Wheat Heaters. Plans and estimates furnished on application. Correspondence Solicited.

INTRODUCTORY.

THE flattering reception accorded the first issue of the MINNESOTA STATE DIRECTORY has incited us to redouble our efforts to make the present edition even more valuable and complete than its predecessor. Many new features have been added to the work, amongst them a Gazetteer and Business Directory of Dakota; also a Shippers' Guide, giving full shipping instructions to every village, town or city in the State. The information is as reliable as it is possible to attain in publications of this class, the constant changes in business alone, even while the work is in press, being fatal to absolute correctness. We mention this from the fact that what may appear to subscribers as errors on our part are, in the majority of cases, changes in business, over which we, of course, have no control, and therefore should be held blameless.

Few other publications require so much close attention, care and patience to insure correctness in their compilation. This, with the large outlay of money, makes the task one of considerable magnitude, and we can safely say that we have used our best endeavors to publish a work creditable alike to ourselves and the State. The importance to business men of a reliable State Gazetteer and Business Directory has been fully demonstrated. The much larger circulation of the present issue over that of 1878 is proof conclusive that our labors are appreciated, and that regular biennial issues will be sustained by the business public.

WHO IS UNACQUAINTED WITH THE GEOGRAPHY OF THIS COUNTRY, WILL SEE BY EXAMINING THIS MAP, THAT THE CHICAGO, ROCK ISLAND & PACIFIC R. R.

IS THE GREAT CONNECTING LINK BETWEEN THE EAST & THE WEST!

Its main line runs from Chicago to Council Bluffs, passing through Joliet, Ottawa, La Salle, Geneseo, Moline, Rock Island, Davenport, West Liberty, Iowa City, Marengo, Brooklyn, Grinnell, Des Moines (the capital of Iowa), Stuart, Atlantic, and Avoca; with branches from Bureau Junction to Peoria; Wilton Junction to Muscatine, Washington, Fairfield, Eldon, Belknap, Centreville, Princeton, Trenton, Gallatin, Cameron, Leavenworth, Atchison, and Kansas City; Washington to Sigourney, Oskaloosa, and Knoxville; Keokuk to Farmington, Bonaparte, Bentonsport, Independent, Eldon, Ottumwa, Eddyville, Oskaloosa, Pella, Monroe, and Des Moines; Newton to Monroe; Des Moines to Indianola and Winterset; Atlantic to Lewis and Audubon; and Avoca to Harlan. This is positively the only Railroad, which owns, and operates a through line from Chicago into the State of Kansas.

Through Express Passenger Trains, with Pullman Palace Cars attached, are run each way daily between CHICAGO and PEORIA, KANSAS CITY, COUNCIL BLUFFS, LEAVENWORTH and ATCHISON. Through cars are also run between Milwaukee and Kansas City, via the "Milwaukee and Rock Island Short Line."

The "Great Rock Island" is magnificently equipped. Its road bed is simply perfect, and its track is laid with steel rails.

What will please you most will be the pleasure of enjoying your meals, while passing over the beautiful prairies of Illinois and Iowa, in one of our magnificent Dining Cars that accompany all Through Express Trains. You get an entire meal, as good as is served in any first-class hotel, for seventy-five cents.

Appreciating the fact that a majority of the people prefer separate apartments for different purposes (and the immense passenger business of this line warranting it), we are pleased to announce that this Company runs Pullman Palace Sleeping Cars for sleeping purposes, and Palace Dining Cars for eating purposes only. One other great feature of our Palace Cars is a SMOKING SALOON where you can enjoy your "Havana" at all hours of the day.

Magnificent Iron Bridges span the Mississippi and Missouri rivers at all points crossed by this line, and transfers are avoided at Council Bluffs, Kansas City, Leavenworth, and Atchison, connections being made in Union Depots.

THE STATE OF MINNESOTA.

In the first edition of this work we published a summary of the early history, drawn from the most authentic sources, of what is now the great State of Minnesota. As the public is more concerned in the facts of the vast natural richness and marvelous modern development of the State, we do not deem it necessary to recur now to what is simply matter of history.

Minnesota, one of the Northwestern States of the American Union, is situated in the center of the North American continent, between the parallels of 43 deg., 10 min. and 49 deg. north latitude and the meridians 89 deg. 29 min. and 97 deg. west from Greenwich. It is bounded on the north by parallel 49 deg. to the Lake of the Woods, thence by the Lake of the Woods to Rainy Lake River and Rainy Lake and the successive chain of small lakes and streams to Lake Superior. The north shore of Lake Superior forms the eastern boundary as far as Fond du Lac, Wis. Thence the boundary follows the meridian 92 deg. 15 min. to the St. Croix river, the St. Croix to its junction with the Mississippi, and the Mississippi to the southern line of the State. On the south it is bounded by Iowa, on the parallel 43 deg. 30 min ; on the west by Dakota Territory, on the meridian 96 deg. 39 min., as far as Big Stone Lake, and thence northward by Lake Traverse and the Red River of the North. Its extreme length, from north to south, is 380 miles ; its extreme breadth 337. Its area, as estimated by the United States land office, is 83,531 square miles, or 53,459,840 acres. Its name is derived from the Dakota words Minne Sota (sky-tinted), applied to its principal river, whose water is sometimes blue from minute quantities of earthy matter held in suspension, but there are some who attempt to trace the name to the Portuguese words Minnay Sotor.

The general surface of the State is undulating, in the prairie regions riant. Having neither mountain ranges nor hills of any magnitude, the State is, nevertheless, the watershed of the entire northwestern part of the continent east of the Rocky Mountains. Its central situation particularly fits it to perform such a function. Between the Atlantic and Pacific Oceans, Hudson's Bay and the Gulf of Mexico, the sources of the three great river systems of the continent are found within its boundaries. A range of flat-topped drift hills is found crossing its northern portion from east to west, rarely exceeding 100 feet in elevation above the environing country, though at an altitude of about 1,680 feet above the level of the sea, in or near which are the sources of the Mississippi, the Red River of the North, which discharges into Hudson's Bay, the feeders and tributaries of the Lake of the Woods, which also connect with Lake Winnepeg and the immense system of water courses of the northern portion of the continent. Here are also the sources of the St. Louis river, the head of the great lakes whose waters eventually find an outlet into the Atlantic through the St. Lawrence River and Gulf. Still following the physical formation of the State, we find three distinct slopes, different in soil, vegetation and geological characteristics. The northern includes not only the great wheat growing valley of the Red River of the North, but the lakes and streams feeding Rainy Lake and the Lake of the Woods. The eastern comprises the valley of the St. Louis and its pine-bordered tributaries, sloping gently toward Lake Superior. On the south we have the vast area drained by the Mississippi and its affluents, and by far the larger of all, comprising nearly two-thirds of the State, and extending into and forming part of the great Mississippi Valley. The descent from the summit of this vast divide in latitude 47 deg. 45 min. to 48 deg. to the southern boundary is nearly one thousand feet, but this tremendous fall is almost imperceptible, save in such abrupt descents as are furnished by the Falls of St. Anthony and Minnehaha, averaging but from 2½ to 3 feet per mile.

Three-fourths of the State may best be described as a rolling prairie, interspersed with frequently recurring groves and oak openings and belts of hardwood timber, sprinkled with innumerable little lakes and drained by clear streams. The remaining fourth is taken up by the hill region which forms the divide, the great mineral tract lying in the neighborhood of Lake Superior and the heavily timbered territory around the sources of the Mississippi and the Red River of the North. The State is mostly drained by the Mississippi, the Red river and the St. Louis, with their tributaries. Of the affluents of the Mississippi the Minnesota, on the northwest side, is the principal; while on the southwest are the Zumbro, the Root, the Cannon, the Sauk, the Crow Wing and the Willow; on the north and northeast, the St. Croix and the Rum river, the latter the outlet of Mille Lacs lake. The Red river has several branches of inconsiderable size, the Buffalo, Wild Rice, Red lake and Reed Grass. The affluents of the St. Louis are the Ushkabawashka, the Big White Face, Stone, Floodwood and Savannah. Other streams are the Vermillion, flowing into Lake Superior, the Snake river, the Little Fork, Big Fork and Baudethe, discharging into Rainy lake. The Mississippi is navigable within the State for 540 miles, the St. Croix for 53, the Red river for 250, the Minnesota at some seasons for 300 and the St. Louis for 21. Many of the smaller streams, such as the Cannon and the Zumbro, could be made navigable at little cost, and most of those which are not navigable are valuable for their water powers and facilities for driving logs from the great pineries. The navigable rivers of Minnesota have a shore line of nearly 2,750 miles and a water line of nearly 1,530.

Minnesota is emphatically the land of lakes, and in this respect, not to speak of her streams at all, can lay claim to being the best watered State of the Union, her lake surface amounting to one thirty-fifth of her entire area. Schoolcraft's estimate that there are some 10,000 lakes in the State has been to a certain extent borne out by the observations of General Baker, who computes the average area of the surveyed lakes at 300 acres. The areas of the largest lakes are: Mille Lacs, 130,000 acres; Leech lake, 114,000; Winnebegoshish, 56,000; Minnetonka, 16,000; Red lake, a peculiarly shaped double lake in the central part of Beltrami county, has not yet been accurately surveyed, but it is much larger than any of those named. The greater lakes, however, are not the river sources, as Lake Itasca, the ultimate source of the Mississippi, of horseshoe shape, is but from 10 to 12 miles wide at its greatest diameter. Lake Traverse, the source of the Red River of the North, is long but narrow. So is Big Stone lake, the source of the Minnesota, while Dead Fish lake, that of the St. Louis, is quite small, and Lakes Pepin and St. Croix are but enlargements of the Mississippi and St. Croix rivers. The lakes are of infinitely varied scenic beauty, while in some parts of the State their number is simply amazing. A man can stand on a height of land in Douglas, Otter Tail, Cass or Itasca counties and count them by the score within his range of vision. Generally their water is clear, pure and cold, the bottoms of shingle and pebble and the depth frequently extreme. Many have no known outlet, and are fed or discharged by running streams; many others are marshy or grassy or covered with wild rice, and are the homes of untold myriads of water fowl and teeming with food fish of every kind. The State fish commissioner is industriously stocking the lakes and water courses with ova of white fish, lake and brook trout and other valuable varieties which may be advantageously propogated. The immense water area plays an important part upon the climatic economy of the region, retarding the early approach of frost in autumn, and by collecting the great volume of water from rains and melting snow the lakes serve as reservoirs for the innumerable streams, thus, apart wholly from their picturesque beauty, being of inestimable practical value to the community.

GEOLOGICAL CHARACTERISTICS.

The State is, in great part, covered with rich and fertile alluvium, or, as in the high lands, with an older and less fertile drift, which, however, sustains a magnificent forest growth. Beneath this there are, along the north shore of Lake Superior, and extending south on both sides of the St. Croix and the Mississippi, broad belts of metamorphic slates and sandstones, mingled with volcanic traps and porphyries of the Silurian epoch, with frequent dykes of basalt and greenstone, subjected in the strata. Occasional deposits of marl, drift and red clay are found above these rocks. Near the southern boundary of the State is found a small deposit of the Devonian formation, and west and north are Silurian slates and limestones of eozoic formation, hornblende and argillaceous rock, slate, granite, gneiss, and other metallomorphic rocks. In the northern part, beyond the Red River of the North, we meet another belt of Silurian, upper in the northern, but lower in the Mississippi district. This is mostly limestone, and almost wholly devoid of fossils. Next comes a broad belt of Niagara, Galena and Trenton limestone, and a little Potsdam sandstone. In the southwest corner the eozoic formation again approaches the surface and mineral deposits are found. Iron exists in the Lake Superior region, and in the south and southwest. Copper exists in the Lake Superior region largely, and in the south and west. Only recently has any attempt been made to mine it on a large scale. Silver has been found in large quantity about 90 miles from Duluth, and there is a prospect of a large rush to the new fields. Gold and silver are to be found together in the valley of the Vermillion river. Slate, lime and salt abound in the Red river valley, and at Belle Plaine, on the Minnesota; white sand and building stone are plentiful, and deposits of peat, tripoli, marl and red pipestone.

SOIL, ETC.

With the exception of the granitic formation in the Lake Superior region, almost the whole of Minnesota is covered by alluvial drifts of widely varying depth and diversified vegetable growth. The inferior, or earlier of these deposits, are frequently found through wide districts, generally argillaceous wholly, or calcareous argillaceous, and in Goodhue, Blue Earth and Brown counties, having in the lower stratum a large proportion of alumina. Deposits of calcareous and silicous origin, filled with vegetable and animal fossils abound throughout the State, in the wooded regions, covered with a thick surface layer of vegetable mold mixed with silicates. On the prairie lands the mold is replaced with washings of clay lime, sands and ashes of plants. In the Red

[illegible]

River Valley, where the water flow is very gradual on account of the lowness of the land, the alluvium is particularly rich and deep, with a strongly marked alkaline quality. Everywhere the soil is marked by a strong combination of organic remains, which give it an abundant supply of phosphates and other fertilizing properties, and so deep are the deposits of these invaluable essentials to rich cultivation that they are inexhaustible. The fructifying principles of the great Minnesota grain fields seem to be renewed by absorption from the atmosphere almost, if not altogether wholly, as rapidly as they are consumed by successive crops. In appearance the soil is from a grayish to a dark brown in color, being darkest in the lower plains and valleys, where it approaches to blackness, and is quite viscous when wet. Exceedingly friable at all times, never clodding, and so easily worked that a hoe is not needed in the potato field save to eradicate weeds, it presents characteristics which the observant agriculturist cannot but appreciate. The area of the state available for husbandry approximates 65,000 square miles, and in this vast domain, more fertile and full of food promise to the people of the exhausted fields of Europe than was Egypt of old, every vegetable product fit for human consumption grows with astounding prolificness. Little wonder that with the rush of immigration and the amazing settlement of her broad prairies and savannahs, Minnesota has become the banner wheat raiser among the States of the Union. And this, too, when only $\frac{1}{10}$ of her arable surface is as yet improved; and of this tenth but about two-thirds, or some 2,936,325 acres are devoted to the production of wheat. Oats, rye and barley flourish equally well with wheat, and in half the State, at least, there is as sure a crop and nearly as productive as in Illinois, Ohio and Indiana, while there is every likelihood that in time the northern part will become a corn raising region also.

The following exhibit will give some idea of the productive wealth of Minnesota. For convenience sake the State is apportioned into its ten natural divisions, as follows:

1. Lower Mississippi slope, including the counties of Houston, Winona, Wabasha, Goodhue, Dakota, Dodge, Olmsted, Mower and Fillmore.
2. Big Woods (south). Scott, Le Sueur, Waseca, Blue Earth, Rice and Steele counties, all lying south of the Mississippi river.
3. Des Moines slope. Freeborn, Faribault, Martin, Jackson, Nobles, Rock, Pipe Stone and Murray counties.
4. Upper Minnesota (south). Watonwan, Brown, Redwood, Cottonwood, Lyon, Lincoln, Yellow Medicine and Lac Qui Parle counties.
5. Minnesota slope (north). Carver, Sibley, Nicollet, Renville, Chippewa, Swift, Big Stone, Stevens, Pope and Kandiyohi counties.
6. Upper Mississippi (west). Hennepin, Wright, McLeod, Meeker, Stearns, Douglas, Todd, Morrison, Cass and Wadena counties. Morrison and Cass counties lie partly on both sides of the river, but are necessarily included in one division, because reports made to State officers embrace counties as units.
7. Red River slope. Traverse, Grant, Otter Tail, Clay, Becker, Polk, Marshall and Kittson counties.
8. Northern counties. Beltrami, Itasca, St. Louis, Lake and Cook counties.

It is to be noted that the State statistician estimates for unreported towns and counties 8,629 acres, 146.493 bushels wheat, making total product 37,300,225 bushels, being an average of 13½ bushels per acre: 1.790 acres, 71,600 bushels oats—total, 561,382 acres and 21,186.566 bushels, an average of 37¾ bushels per acre; 308 acres, 8,316 bushels barley—total, 55,428 acres and 1,493,669 bushels. an average of 27 bushels per acre; 724 acres, 25.340 bushels corn—total. 324.066 acres and 11.279,585 bushels, an average of 35¼ bushels; 208 acres, 20,200 bushels potatoes—total, 33,539 acres, 3,251,271 bushels, an average of 97 bushels per acre.

A notable feature of wheat culture in Minnesota is the ability of land to produce crops year after year without rest, and without the application of fertilizers. The mean averages of the six years from 1866 to 1871, inclusive, were 15.34 bushels per acre. From 1871 to 1878, inclusive, the mean averages were 15.33, just 1-100th part of a bushel less: yet this period included 1876, when the crops of the State reached their lowest known average.

THE CROPS OF 1879 AND 1880.

The total acreage of wheat in 1879 is reported by Hon. H. F. Christensen, Commissioner of Statistics, to have been 2.762,521 acres, and the crop 31,218,634 bushels, an average yield of 11.30 bushels to the acre. This return, however, is not complete, as many farmers are reported by town assessors as refusing to list or give information. A comparison of the official figures with the shipments of wheat in the State and receipts at the places of destination, convinces the Commissioner that at least 20 per cent. should be added to the total yield, which would bring the crop up to 37,462,360 bushels. The low average is accounted for by the long dry spell in the summer of 1879, just before the ripening of the wheat, which caused considerable injury to the crop in certain localities, in one county reducing the yield to the average of 2.16 bushels per acre. The average yield per acre of other cereals in 1879 was: oats, 36.35 bushels; corn, 33.95; barley, 24.89.

The total wheat acreage sown during the present year, 1880, was 2,936,325, an increase over 1879 of 200,804 acres, or 7.27 per cent. This is mainly in the Red River Valley. In the southern part several counties show no change whatever, while others report a falling off from 1,766 acres in Jackson, to 17,313 acres in Fillmore county. From reports received from all sources, the average yield is not less than 15 bushels, which, with the reported acreage, gives a result of 44,449,875 bushels. Adding to this the same percentage to account for unreported harvests, the crop in the State may be estimated to fall not far short of 53,339,850 bushels. The increase in acreage in other cereals is: oats, 21.33 per cent.; corn, 19.95 per cent., and barley, 22.59 per cent., with every promise of an abundant crop. The oats grown in Minnesota are generally heavy, contain an unusual quantity of nutritive constituents, and are held in high esteem for the manufacture of oatmeal. The lowest average yield for nine years preceding 1877, was 28⅔ bu. per acre; the highest 37½. Barley has averaged from 18¾ bu. to 30¼ bu., with a mean average of 26 bu., and has been notably marked by plumpness and mature development and freedom from rust. Rye has not fallen below an average of 12¼ bu., nor exceeded 19 bu., 16 being the mean average. In buckwheat the extreme averages have been 7¼ and 16⅗ bu., with a mean average of 13⅓. All these averages are greatly superior to those of the same products in Ohio. In cultivated timothy the yield per acre is the same as in Ohio, or as $1\frac{13}{100}$ ton per acre in Ohio is to $1\frac{18}{100}$ in Minnesota. Clover has been grown but recently, and the crop is reported as large. There is no official report as to flax, but its culture is increasing, the seed product being given as $7\frac{36}{100}$ bu. per acre as against $6\frac{9}{10}$ bu. in Ohio. Both flax and hemp grow well in the State, with excellent fibre, and their cultivation promises, in time, to become an important source of wealth. The wild grasses of the State are famous for the abundant nourishment they contain and the rich and ample pasturage they afford to horses, cattle and sheep. They also make an excellent article of hay which many farmers prefer to timothy. Buffalo, head and blue joint grasses, after the ground has been mown over a few times, become fine and succulent and cure perfectly. Cattle can subsist comfortably during the winter on hay made from the coarse slough grass and kept in good order if properly sheltered.

Minnesota has always been famous for the abundance and fine quality of her wild crab apples, plums, blackberries, strawberries and grapes. These are now being improved by crossing with old and cultivated species, and the result has surprised the most vivid expectation, for the hybrids excel the cultivated varieties. The wild grapes most abound in the bottom lands of creeks and rivers, and afford, under proper treatment, a choice article of wine. The fruit product of every kind is now abundant. After a long struggle against what appeared to be insuperable obstacles, the cultivation of apples has become an important interest in the State. The latest report of apple growth is that of 1878, when 203,493 apple trees were in bearing in the State and 1,219,324 growing. Cultivated (or tame) strawberries were grown in 50 counties and nearly a quarter of a million of quarts were picked in 1879, the yield including all the varieties known in the Middle States. The grape varieties are the Concord, Isabella and Delaware, and the product is generous. Cultivated raspberries, blackberries, currants, gooseberries and plums flourish everywhere in the State, the yield is prolific and the quality unexcelled. Bees and honey are natural products, thriving well when domesticated. Italian bees imported to the State have thriven well and are easily kept during winter. The honey product in 1878 was 253,221 pounds. All the varieties of garden vegetables cultivated in the Middle States flourish in Minnesota and mature early. Roots do well, and there are no finer potatoes, beets, turnips, parsnips, carrots, salsify, radishes, onions, etc., than those grown in the State. Squashes, pumpkins and melons attain enormous size; cabbage, lettuce, spinach, endives, peas and beans, grow rapidly and are of superb quality. Maple sugar and syrup are very largely manufactured. Tobacco is coming into wide cultivation, principally for domestic use. Unexpected success has attended the experiments in the manufacture of syrup and sugar from amber cane. By the application of improved machinery for expressing the juice of the "Early Amber," and the discovery of a practical method of manufacturing and refining, the long discussed problem has been solved, and now sugar and syrup of a very superior quality are being made by the farmers, and by manufacturers on a large scale. In 1879, 4,724 acres were planted, and the average product was 100 gallons of syrup or 600 lbs. of sugar per acre. An amber cane sugar refinery has been erected at Faribault, Rice county, at a cost of $10,000, and several others, each to cost from four to five times as much, are projected or in course of erection in different parts of the State.

The soil characteristics already enumerated point Minnesota out as a country peculiarly fitted for stock raising. Buffalo and blue-joint grasses grow luxuriantly in all the prairie regions, and cattle commonly prefer the indigenous to the tame fodder. The abundant water supply, clear and pure everywhere, save in some of the shallow wells in the Red River valley impregnated with accumulations of ashes of an extraordinary vegetable growth annually burned over for many years, is an invaluable adjunct to the nutritious grasses, but even in the Red River country the water in the streams and deep wells is not alkaline. The report of the State Auditor for 1879 showed the number of cattle, horses, mules, sheep and hogs in each natural division of the State to be as follows:

Minnesota fed beef, mutton and pork fetches the highest prices in the eastern and European markets, while the cattle and domestic animals of the State are remarkably free from disease.

The dairy and wool interests are growing with rapid strides. The statistician gives the following figures of the manufacture of butter and cheese and the wool clip for 1879:

To these figures must be added 383,000 lbs. butter, 15,875 lbs. cheese and 11,123 lbs. wool, on account of non-reporting towns and counties.

FOREST WEALTH.

Minnesota is a richly wooded State; indeed, it might justly lay claim to being a timber State instead of being classed among the prairie commonwealths, for half of her soil is covered with forests more or less dense. The region about the headwaters of the Mississippi and St. Croix are immense pineries, upon whose outskirts operations have been progressing for several years. Thousands of millions of feet have been cut from this great tract, without making any apparent impression. A great syndicate has been formed to utilize the immense lumber wealth of Minnesota for the benefit of the treeless States and Territories. The "Big Woods," extending through the central portion of the State, comprises about 5,000 square miles of fine timber—spruce, hemlock, birch, ash, oak, maple, walnut, poplar, cottonwood, linden, aspen, and occasionally hickory, iron-wood, wild cherry and other varieties. White pine and Norway pine are found in the pine regions, while hackberry, basswood, tamarac, butternut and cedar are common. The wooded region, however, is almost exclusively in the northern and eastern portion of the State. Twenty-five counties in the southwestern and central parts are almost treeless. To overcome this the process of artificial forest raising, encouraged by the timber homestead act of Congress and the State bounties, has been largely adopted, and already the prairie region is beginning to show the effect of this wise policy. Thousands of rows and groves of cottonwood, ash, maple, poplar, and several other varieties of forest trees may now be seen along the railroads and surrounding the dwellings of the thrifty farmers of the prairies. The State Forestry Association has done a great deal for the extension of this movement. There are now in the State 31,220 acres of planted forest trees, while 280,945 rods of trees are planted along highways and around farms.

CLIMATE.

The climate of Minnesota is a theme upon which her people dilate, and with justifiable pride, for the universal consent of all who have experienced it is that it is glorious. Though the State is a Northern one, it is embraced in the same isothermal zone as Ohio and Pennsylvania, and is no farther north than the Province of Quebec, Canada, or the State of Maine. Great Britain and Ireland, Christiana, Sweden, Denmark, the whole German Empire and part of France lie further north, so far as the parallel of latitude goes, than Minnesota. The winters are cold, but with a dry cold, which enables one to bear, without the slightest inconvenience, a temperature which would freeze a man to death in a moist atmosphere. The winter of 1876 was the severest within the memory of the oldest inhabitant, yet it did not interfere with building and other outdoor work, save when heavy storms—and these were infrequent—were raging. The summer, also, offers no inconveniences from excessive heat, such as is experienced in more southern parts of the country. The temperature is high, beyond all question, but the rarity of the atmosphere makes it the reverse of unpleasant. The great value of this atmospheric condition is borne testimony to by the thousands who have been cured of pulmonary complaints and consumption by a short residence in the State. Crowds of invalids yearly flock to the State to seek health and strength, denied them in more humid climates. During the summer, no matter how extreme may have been the temperature during the day, the nights are always cool, ensuring to sick and well alike sound and refreshing sleep. The permanent population is an exceedingly healthy one, the rate of mortality being only 1 in 110. These mortality returns, it should be remarked, include all those persons who, having been sent to the State in an advanced stage of disease, happen to die there. The average rate of mortality in the entire United States is about 1 in 74. Besides being dry, the atmosphere of Minnesota abounds in ozone, an element of a high oxydizing and purifying power.

The seasons in Minnesota correspond in length, generally, with those of the Middle States of the Union. Spring commences about the close of March, or early in April, and planting is done but little later than in Ohio. Harvest commences usually in July, and is continued into August. About the first week of October the early autumnal frosts announce the opening of Indian summer, the most charming of all seasons, when the air is cool and delicious, and all nature is pervaded with a masterful sense of rest. Plowing may be continued till winter, which usually sets in about November 20, so that the farmer has ample time in which to prepare his ground for early seeding in the spring. From this date cold goes on increasing in severity until winter has fairly settled over the State, about Christmas. The winters are not uniformly cold, either, for there are warm periods, notably in the middle of January and middle of February.

GAME

Abounds in Minnesota. In the early days of settlement buffalo, deer, elk, moose and bear were numerous, but with the advance of civilization they have disappeared. Moose is still found, deer are being rapidly exterminated by merciless slaughter." Aquatic fowl, geese, brant duck and pigeon abound in the lake regions; quail, primated and ruffled grouse, woodcock, snipe and rabbits are plentiful. Of fish, with which the lakes and streams teem, the principal are the muscalonge, pike, pickerel, sun-fish and croppy. The State Fish Commissioner is stocking the streams with salmon, shad, white fish and black bass.

THE STATE'S WEALTH.

The development of the population and material wealth of Minnesota is one of the marvels of the century. Up till 1854 it was supposed to be a howling wilderness, and during the early years of its Territorial existence the accessions to its population were slow, but from its admission to the Union as a State, in 1858, settlement began to be more rapid, and in 1860 its census returns showed a population of 172,023. In 1865, spite of the war and the Indian massacres, these figures had increased to 250,099. In 1870, 439,706 souls were reported, and in 1875 the State enumerators reported the figures at 597,407. The census returns of the present year, while disappointing to many, and regarded as unsatisfactory, in view of the unprecedented influx of immigration, still show the immense figures of 780,072.

The property valuation in 1860, was given by the State Auditor's report as something over $36,500,000. In 1865 it was shown to have increased to $45,184,063, or at the rate of 46 per cent per annum. By 1870 the valuation had advanced to $807,133,673. an increase of 18.56 per cent. From 1870 to 1875 the reports of the State Auditors showed the State to be increasing in material wealth at the rate of 30.23 per cent per annum, the amount given for the latter year being $218,855,743. In 1879 the valuation had progressed to $242,489,038, of which amount $12,697,996 had apparently accumulated from May, 1878, to May, 1879. The recent valuations are believed to be within 20 per cent of the actual value of the property, as assessors are required by law to approximate as nearly possible to cash valuation. Accepting this theory as correct, the present property valuation of the State must be in the vicinity of $300,000,000. The increase of property naturally tends to bring about a reduction of taxation, the rate of taxation for 1879 being about 15.5 mills. or 1 mill less than 1878. The total local indebtedness of towns, counties, etc., on all accounts, including school bonds and railroad bonuses. is $5,272,237. The total expenses of administering the concerns of the State in 1878 were $1,562,410. The recognized State debt is $622.000, of which $200,000 represents loans to settlers in frontier counties, and is being repaid with interest, and is no burden whatever to the public. The remainder, $422,000, bears 7 per cent interest. The following table shows the total taxable and cultivated acres, the assessed values of property, and the total taxes imposed in each of the several natural divisions of the State.

MANUFACTURES.

With the revival of prosperity the manufacturing interests of Minnesota have received a remarkable impulse. There are, unfortunately, no reliable statistics available upon which to found an accurate statement of the magnitude of industrial operations in this direction. The State leads the Union in the production of flour of a superior quality to any known on the face of the globe. The principal industries are carriage and wagon factories, saw-mills, planing, sash and door mills, furniture factories, car and machine works, plow, harvester, fanning mill and general agricultural machinery and implement works, boot and shoe factories, clothing establishments, potteries, brickyards, tanneries, cigar factories, breweries, iron foundries, woolen mills, cheese factories, printing and publishing houses, typefounding and lithographic establishments, drug and spice mills, distilleries, tub and pail works, and pork packing houses. The range of industry is being continually expanded to meet the wants of a growing population.

THE RAILROAD SYSTEM

of Minnesota is but 18 years old, but already it is little inferior to that of older States. Additional lines and branches are being constantly added to the 41 roads enumerated by the Railroad Commissioner in his report for 1880. The total length of railroad in Minnesota on January 1, 1880, was 3,010.04 miles; during 1878 more miles of road were built in Minnesota than in any other State, but the record of that year was exceeded by 25 per cent. in 1879, when 436.54 miles were constructed. The gross earnings of all the roads from freight were $5,430,379.93; from passengers, $2,074,918.80, and from all sources $8,047,834.36. The net earnings were $2,941,480.45, or a percentage of the gross earnings of 36.55. The total number of passengers carried was 1,809,380; the carriage of freight was 2,725,253 tons received at stations within the State, the total comprising 298,146 tons of flour and meal, and 494,366 tons of lumber. In other portions of this work the nature of the railroad progress of the State has been dwelt upon at length, notably in the sketches of Minneapolis and St. Paul. Suffice it to say, that the 41 roads in the State are controlled by 11 corporations. Throughout the State stations are about 6 miles apart, and stores for general merchandise, agricultural implements, lumber, wood, coal, etc., may be found at almost every station. Villages are met with at every 12 miles of road, and save in the northern counties, the Red River Valley and the triangle formed by the Mississippi, St. Louis and St. Croix rivers, it is difficult to find a place more than 20 miles distant from a railway. Competition in trade is everywhere so active that prices rule as low in the country as in the cities, while at all stations the farmer can obtain cash for his wheat at about Chicago prices, minus the actual charge of transportation.

GOVERNMENT.

The form of government is simple, being divided into executive, legislative and judicial branches. The executive consists of the Governor, Lieutenant Governor, Secretary of State, Treasurer of State, Attorney General and Railroad Commissioner, who are elected for two years; an Auditor of State, elected for three years, and a Clerk of the Supreme Court, elected for four years. The appointed officers are the Adjutant General, State Librarian, Governor's private secretary, Superintendent of Public Instruction, Insurance Commissioner and Public Examiner, all of whom hold office for two years, and whose appointment must be confirmed by the Senate. The Legislature is composed of two Houses, the Senate and House of Representatives, whose members will henceforward be elected and meet biennially. The Senate consists of 41 members, the House of 106. The session is limited to 60 days, and the pay of members is $5 per diem. Suffrage is universal. Citizenship may be acquired by any male over 21 years of age, after one year's residence in the United States and four months in the State.

THE STATE INSTITUTIONS.

The result of 20 years' progress, are a University, representing a cost of $127,350; three normal schools, $231,431.52; Deaf, Dumb and Blind Asylum, $152,000; Insane Asylum, $511,461.78; Reform School, $75,000; State's Prison, $217,059.92, or a total outlay of $1,314,503.22.

EDUCATIONAL AND RELIGIOUS.

The pioneers of Minnesota brought with them their love of the common schools. The State now takes high rank, educationally. The latest published report of the Superintendent of Public Instruction shows that there are in the State 3,794 school districts, and 3,284 schools, employing 4.872 teachers and imparting instruction to 160,867 children. The following table of the distribution of educational facilities in the ten natural divisions of the State summarizes the latest compiled result of the educational movement:

DIVISIONS.	Scholars.	Amount of Fund.	School Houses.	Value of Houses.
Lower Mississippi slope	51.108	$137,350	1,033	$1,467,917

It is proper to remark that besides the public schools there are in the first, second, fourth, fifth, sixth, ninth and tenth divisions about sixty denominational schools and higher institutions of learning, among which are several justly entitled to rank with the leading educational establishments in the older States. Of the public schools some forty-three may be properly termed graded, and nearly half of these have departments entitled to be called high schools, as the course of studies taught therein belongs to that grade. There are three normal schools in the State and a university supported by public funds. The permanent school fund of the State amounts to very nearly $3,500,000, and is constantly increasing by the proceeds of additional sales of lands. The interest only of this can be expended, and no part of it is applied to the university or normal schools. The university has a permanent fund of $375,000 arising from special grant of lands, which will likewise be largely increased by additional sales of the same. The normal schools also have a grant of 225,000 acres of land for their support, the proceeds of the sale of which are to constitute a permanent fund. The schools also have the benefit of moneys arising from licenses, estrays and fines, either in whole or part, and thus, though the aggregate cost of school maintainance is great, the annual taxation is very light, and, as population increases, is constantly decreasing.

It is almost unnecessary to speak of the religious features of the State. Every village and hamlet has one or more churches, and all the denominations of the Christian church are fully represented. Handsome and costly church edifices are so numerous as to excite no remark, save in the larger cities. The clergy of the State are an eminently liberal minded, progressive and cultured class, and the tone of society, under their influence and that of the press and the schools, is moral and ele-

The clergy of the State are an eminently liberal minded, progressive and cultured class, and the tone of society, under their influence and that of the press and the schools, is moral and elevated. No state can claim superiority to Minnesota in this regard. Charitable societies are numerous, and as ease and leisure increase, literary and art societies grow up and take permanent root in the community.

CONCERNING LANDS.

Though Minnesota is far advanced in development, there yet remains a large area of unoccupied land. The approximate estimate, collated from the latest data, shows the available territory to be as follows:

DIVISIONS.	U. S. lands, acres.	State lands, acres.	R. R., etc., lands, acres
Lower Mississippi slope	....	8,991	14,239
Big Woods (south)	....	3,171	3.600

Upper Minnesota (north)	10,000	465,000	260,000
Upper Mississippi (west)	2.150,000	535,000	1,036.000
Red river slope	2,250,000	585.000	2,000,000
Northern counties	8,750,000	600.000	230,000
St. Croix slope	230,000	115,000	675,000
Upper Mississippi (east)	120,000	155,000	477,000
Total	13,523,000	2,777,935	6,205 439

In all 22,506,374 acres in the State wholly unoccupied and unimproved, fully three-fourths of which is susceptible of cultivation, and much of it lying in the most prolific regions. About 9,000,000 acres of Government lands in the 6th, 7th and 8th divisions are yet unsurveyed. These embrace three Indian reservations, all of limited extent, which must soon be vacated and opened to settlement. Those Government lands remaining in the 3d, 4th and 5th divisions are mostly in small tracts, being fractional parts, or the legal subdivisions caused by the meanderings of lakes or rivers; though there are, no doubt, some desirable quarter-sections which have been filed upon for homesteads and subsequently abandoned in all these localities. But it is somewhat difficult for new comers into the State to find them unless they have acquaintances in the neighborhood, for the vacancies of such tracts can only become known to the local land officers, before the five years expire, by being reported, and this is seldom done save by parties who desire to locate upon them themselves. In the 6th, 7th and 8th divisions there is no present scarcity of desirable lands, but those in the 9th and 10th are being taken quite rapidly, since their fitness for agriculture has been demonstrated, and they have been made more easily accessible by railroads, with the prospect of a speedy increase of their railway facilities. The price of much of the larger proportion of Government lands remaining in the State is $1.25 per acre, though a considerable share of that in the 6th, 7th and 8th divisions is not yet subject to private entry, but it is constantly coming into market. That within the limits of railway grants is still held at $2.50 per acre. Nearly all the Government land in the State is open to pre-emption and homestead claims, and a great part of the prairie lands to timber-culture claims, at the rate of 160 to every 640 acres. There are nine land districts with local offices, as follows:

First district, Worthington, Nobles county; Second district, New Ulm, Brown county; Third district, Redwood Falls, Redwood county; Fourth district, Benson, Swift county; Fifth district, Fergus Falls, Otter Tail county; Sixth district, Crookston, Polk county; Seventh district, Taylor's Falls, Chisago county; Eighth district, Duluth, St. Louis county; Ninth district, St. Cloud, Stearns county.

The State lands comprise grants of two sections in every township for public schools, 100,000 acres for agricultural college, 75,000 acres for State University, 500,000 acres for internal improvements, 2,700,000 acres swamp lands, 6,400 acres for public buildings, and a small grant for salt springs. The swamp lands, not being fully set apart, are not included in the table above, nor are the salt springs lands. On the other classes (those included in the table) a minimum price of $5 per acre is fixed by law. Prior to sale they must be appraised, and then sold at public auction to the highest bidder, always at or above the appraised value. The average price obtained for the agricultural lands is $6.50 per acre. The timber lands commonly command higher figures. On the agricultural lands 15 per cent. of the purchase money must be paid in cash at time of sale, and from 20 years time on some to 30 on others is allowed on the remainder, at 7 per cent., prepaid interest per annum. The purchaser has, of course, the option of paying the remainder at any time after his purchase is made, before the expiration of his term of credit.

sell at from $2.50 to $8 per acre according to location. The lower priced are in the outside counties and near the remote limits of grants, and only such as are in the settled parts of the State or have the advantage of proximity to stations or villages, command the higher figures. The customary price is from $4.50 to $6.50. The terms commonly are 16⅔ or 20 per cent. of price cash, and the remainder in equal annual installments with 7 per cent. interest. The companies are all exceedingly liberal to customers, transporting purchasers and their families and effects free to the lands and providing fuel and supplies to be sold at their stations at very low prices. The man of small or moderate means, desiring to commence in Minnesota, and prepared to work industriously and earnestly for a competence for himself and his family, can find no better land under the sun. The advantages of the State in every respect, are making themselves known, and she is filling up with the choicest immigration flowing into the Union from abroad, and into the west from the over-crowded older States. At the present rate of progress there is reason for believing that many of the old pioneers will live to see more than their wildest dreams of the possible greatness of the Empire State of the new Northwest, a thousand times realized.

CHATFIELD.

An important and progressive incorporated village of some 1,600 inhabitants, on the northern county line of Fillmore and partly in Olmstead county, 14 miles from the county seat, Preston, and 80 from St. Paul, and equi-distant at ten miles from Fountain, on the S. M. R. R,. and Dover Centre on the W. & St. P. R. R. It is on the Chatfield branch of the N. W. R. R., which strikes the N. W. one mile north of Eyota, and has two daily trains running and connecting east and north with the W. & St. P. R. R. The Root river furnishes power for the Chatfield woolen mills, three flouring mills, and one blind and sash factory. The region is an immensely fertile one, as its great shipments of flour, wheat, barley, hides, etc., testify. It is largely wooded with poplar and other soft woods, offering special inducements for the establishment of wood pulp and paper mills. O'Ferrall & Trego have recently established the Chatfield Bank. The Presbyterian, Methodist, Episcopal, Baptist and Roman Catholic congregations have each churches, and the village has a fine high and a graded school, employing seven teachers. The Chatfield Democrat, founded in 1857, five years after the settlement of the village, is published here. The Chatfield Telegraph Company operates a line to Fountain. Express, American. Stage to Fountain daily; fare 75 cents. Three mails daily. Malcolm McLarby, postmaster.

DULUTH.

The vast progress which this Lake Superior port and railroad terminus has been making in the past two years proves that when Proctor Knott made his famous humorous Duluth speech in Congress, he prophesied in jest better than he knew. Settled first in 1869, as a consequence of the attraction of capital and emigration to the head of Lake Superior, Duluth appears to have had no pioneer days, but to have sprung to maturity at once. In 1872 it had a population of 4,000, extensive docks and warehouses, grain elevators, hotels, sawmills, churches and school houses, and real estate speculation was tremendous. In 1873, Jay Cooke & Co., who were carrying on the Northern Pacific Railroad, the mine upon which the town principally depended, failed, and Duluth was prostrated. The population went down to 2,000; business and improvements were at a standstill, property became worthless, merchants were ruined, and everything seemed to point to permanent ruin and decay. The creditors of the city, however, accepted a compromise, its finances were placed upon a new and secure basis, and with the first vibration of the return of confidence and business activity, Duluth began to forge ahead anew. The resumption of operations upon the N. P. R. R., of which Duluth is the eastern terminus, as it is the northern of the St. P. & D., and the M. & St. L., the development of Lake Superior navigation, of which it is the western head, the development, also, of the wealth of the fields, the forests and the mines in the surrounding country tributary to Duluth, especially the discovery of valuable silver and iron deposits 90 miles north of the city, have combined to give it an impetus which is sending it rapidly forward to a high rank among the important cities of the Union.

Duluth is the seat of St. Louis county, on the southwestern shore thereof, on Lake Superior. It is 155 miles nor' nor'west of St. Paul; its population, which has nearly doubled in two years, is now 3,500, and rapidly increasing, while the environing country is becoming thickly settled. In 1879 she shipped to eastern points, 511,942 barrels of flour, 3,435,257 bushels of grain of all kinds; received of freight via N. P. and St. P. & D. Rys., 325,964,267 lbs.; shipped of freight by lake from Jan., 1879, to Jan., 1880, 1,563,396,735 lbs., forwarded of freight by rail, 250,215,700 lbs. The custom house collections from all sources were, for the same period, $5,683.12. The flour product shipped from Duluth represented 6,000,000 bushels of wheat, or the product of over 400,000 acres of cultivated land, and it is probably that as many more acres of virgin soil will pour their produce into Duluth in 1880. receive and handle the great and growing grain trade, Duluth has now a steam elevator of 560,000 bushels capacity, and arrangements have been perfected for building three more, of a capacity of 1,000,000 bushels each. One of these is just completed, at a cost of $200,000. It is 380 feet long, 74 wide and 130 high; is equipped with all modern machinery, and can unload 20 cars and load 2 vessels at the same time. There are 10 steam saw-mills, with a capacity for cutting up 40,000,000 feet of logs annually. The pineries on the streams flowing into Duluth harbor are estimated to contain from 3,000,000,000 to 5,000,000,000 feet, and are almost untouched as yet. Three hundred people derive employment from Duluth's saw-mills. The iron wealth of the region is being developed by the Duluth Iron Company, with $100,000 capital, and employing 260 men, which has purchased the blast furnace, erected in 1873, and established extensive charcoal kilns at Mahtowa (see Mahtowa), where 25,000 cords of wood will be annually consumed in preparing fuel for smelting pig iron. Ernst Wieland, tanner, here conducts probably the only successful tannery in the State, his establishment being equipped with the most improved machinery for turning out harness, upper leather and calf skin. A steam brewery is also in operation here. There is a magnificent opportunity in Duluth for an extensive steam flouring mill.

The leading business institutions are the American Exchange Bank, a State bank founded under the State laws, with a capital of $25,000, and Bell & Eyster's private banking house. C. H. Graves & Co. are wholesale dealers in salt, lime, plaster and cement, also insurance and real estate agents. Their salt docks and warehouse cover a superficies of about 85,000 feet, and have a capacity for 50,000 barrels of salt. G. M. Smith is a wholesaler in flour, feed and mill stuffs; A. J. Miller & Co, in groceries and fruits; Cooley & LaVague in fish; H. Truelson in general merchandise and fish. Williams & Upham are the most extensive river and harbor contractors in the Northwest, keeping 6 steam dredges at work, employing 150 men, and doing business all around the lakos. Scott & Holston are extensive manufacturers of doors, sashes and blinds. Among hotels the Clark House, Thomas Cullyford, proprietor, leads. It does a most extensive business, is extremely popular with tourists and visitors, and is the largest and most complete hotel in the city. The Bay View House, A. M. Longstreet, proprietor; the Windsor House and the Wakelin House are also leading hotels. Among the more prominent business blocks are the Hunter block, brown stone, built at a cost of $30,000; the Clark, do, $30,000; the Banning, do, $25,000; the Ray, brick, $20,000; the Hayes, do, $20,000, and the Edmunds, do, $15,000. Duluth has some fine churches, one of the two Presbyterian edifices costing $15,000. The Congregational, Episcopal, Methodist, Catholic, Norwegian, Swedish and German Evangelical congregations all have churches. The educational wants are supplied by a fine graded school, employing nine teachers, and common schools. The press is represented by the Lake Superior News, an enterprising, progressive and popular journal, and the Duluth Tribune.

The harbor of Duluth is as good as is to be found on the chain of lakes, and the lake traffic is constantly increasing, as the wants of the mining population of 70,000 or 80,000 in the mining and lumbering settlements of the south shore of Lake Superior come to be more exclusively supplied from Duluth. There are now agencies of seven lines of steamboats in the city. For the rest, Duluth, as a manufacturing, receiving and distributing center, is alive and full of business, conscious of her possibilities and confident of her future. Express, U. S. Telegraph, Northwestern. Mail from the west, once, and from the east, twice, daily. Luke Marvin, postmaster.

FARIBAULT.

The seat of Rice county, and one of the most important places in the State, is an incorporated city of 5,500 inhabitants. It is situated at the junction of the Cannon and the Straight rivers, the center of Rice county. It is on the C., M. & St. P. Ry, 55 miles from St. Paul, and is upon the line of the projected Cannon Valley Ry. Faribault is situated in the midst of a magnificent country of mingled prairie, wood and water, and in point of scenic beauty has few rivals in the Northwest. The water power afforded by the Straight and the Cannon rivers is unfailing. There are 9 flouring mills in Faribault, with a combined capacity of 1,000 barrels per day. Among other industries are the Amber Cane Refinery, for extracting syrup from amber cane, 3 large breweries, the Hazen Windmill Company, 2 furniture factories, 2 woolen mills, manufacturing blankets, flannels and woolen yarns, 2 first-class foundries, a carriage and several farm wagon factories. At the Deaf and Dumb Institute large quantities of clothing, boots and shoes and cooperage are turned out, while the making of brooms is a feature of the Institute for the Blind. The Republican and the Democrat have fine steam printing establishments. The city is supplied with gas by a joint stock company. There are 2 national banks, the First and the Citizens, with a combined capital of over $100,000. The principal exports are flour, grain, furniture, woolen goods, pumps, windmills, pork and live stock. There are a number of good hotels in the place, notably the Arlington and the Barron houses. As an educational seat Faribault enjoys wide repute. The Shattuck school for boys is famous as one of the most thorough military seminaries in existence. Its curriculum has received the praise of authoritative educators, and extensive additions have to be made to accommodate its increasing patronage. Thus far the Shattuck school buildings have cost $160,000, and are extremely handsome. St. Mary's Seminary for young girls is one of the most successful establishments of the kind in the country. The buildings of the Bishop Seabury Divinity School cost $75,000, and the college is deservedly noted for the completeness of its training and the soundness of the scholarship it imparts. The Bethlehem Academy and a Roman Catholic school for girls are rapidly growing establishments. The State educational institutes for the deaf and dumb, the blind and for feeble-minded youth are located in the city. The civic school system embraces 6 graded schools, representing an expenditure of $40,000, and employing a corps of 16 teachers. There are 11 churches in the city, 2 Episcopal, including a cathedral erected at a cost of $100,000, 3 Roman Catholic, 2 Methodist, 2 Lutheran, 1 Congregational and 1 Baptist. Faribault is rapidly growing, and is demanding increased railroad communication with the east, a demand which will, in all probability, soon be responded to by the construction of the Cannon Valley road. Daily stage to Waterville, tri-weekly to Red Wing and Cannon City, semi-weekly to Shieldsville and weekly to Wheeling. Telegraph, Northwestern. Express, U. S. Daily mail. Eden N. Leavens, postmaster.

HASTINGS.

The seat of Dakota county, is one of the handsomest, as it is one of the most vigorous, of the many beautiful cities on the Mississippi in Minnesota. It has a population of 3,810, is situated near the center of the eastern border of Dakota county at the confluence of the Vermillion river with the Father of Waters, and the junction of the C., M. & St. P. Ry, with the H. & D. Ry, 32 miles south of St. Paul. Hastings was first settled in 1850, and named in honor of Gen. Henry Hastings Sibley. The first plat was recorded on June 22, 1854, but the town was re-surveyed and the new plat recorded July 21, 1855, and in 1857 it became the county seat. The city is handsomely and regularly laid out, the business streets are lined with fine brick blocks, and the residential district is rich with palatial villas. The Vermillion river, on the south side of the city, forms a beautiful cascade as it falls into a deep gorge, and its power is utilized by 3 flouring mills, among them that of Stephen Gardner, the millionaire miller, of 8 run of stone and a capacity of 1,300 barrels per week. There are also 3 flouring mills operated by steam, 1 saw-mill, 3 planing mills, 3 furniture factories, 1 fanning-mill factory, and 1 machine shop. The First National Bank, established as a State bank in 1856 and as a National bank in 1864, has a capital of $100,000 and a surplus of $34,000. It weathered the crash of 1857, and is regarded as among the solid financial institutions of the west. There are 6 hotels in the city and numerous stores. All the trades and professions are fully represented. There are three newspapers, the New Era, Union and Gazette. The churches are: 1 Presbyterian, 1 Swedish Lutheran, 2 Baptist, 1 Christian, 1 Episcopal, 1 Methodist. The Irving graded school cost $25,000 ten years ago, and employs 13 teachers. There are three other excellent public school houses, an Episcopal parish school and 2 Catholic seminaries. The county building in Hastings, erected in 1870–71, cost $80,000. Flour, wheat and lumber are the principal exports of the place. Telegraph, Northwestern. Express, Am. and U. S. LAKE CITY.

A vigorous and prosperous city of 2,600 inhabitants, in the northeastern corner of Wabasha county, on Lake Pepin, an enlargement of the Mississippi, 12 miles from Wabasha (c h), and 57 miles from St. Paul. It was founded in 1853 and chartered as a city in 1872. It is a station on the C., M. & St. P. Ry., contains 2 steam flouring mills, 2 planing mills, a foundry and machine shop, several hotels, a full complement of wholesale and retail stores, many of them long established houses transacting extensive trade, and numerous factories and mechanic shops. A large agricultural area in both Minnesota and Wisconsin is tributary to the commerce of Lake City. Connection is had with Wisconsin by a steam ferry in summer and an ice bridge in winter. Lake City is somewhat noted as a grain market in which tip-top prices are usually paid, and its exports consist principally of wheat, pork and flour. It has churches of the Presbyterian, Episcopalian, Methodist, Congregational and Lutheran denominations, and a graded public school in two commodious buildings. The city is well built, with many fine business blocks and handsome residences, has an efficient fire department, board of trade, Y. M. C. A., a library association with 800 volumes, and various charitable, literary and other associations. The city offers particular inducements to manufacturers of every kind. The Manufacturers' Aid Society is one of the permanent institutions of the city, and solicits correspondence from all who have capital to invest. Telegraph, Northwestern. Express, Am. Stage to Stockholm, Wis., semi-weekly. Four mails daily. F. W. Seeley, postmaster.

MANKATO.

This beautiful, enterprising and progressive city of 5,552 inhabitants, is magnificently situated in the valley formed by the junction of the Blue Earth river with the Minnesota, and lies under the shadow of bold bluffs and forest-topped hills. It is the fourth in size in the State, and is in the heart of a district which is proud to claim to have been among the earliest settled, as it is one of the most beautiful and fertile in the State. Mankato is in the northern part of Blue Earth county, of which it is the seat, 86 miles southwest from St. Paul and the Mississippi river, at the intersection of the Blue Earth branch of the St. P. & S. C. R. R., C. & N. W. Ry, W. & St. P. R. R., and the Mankato branch of the S. M. Ry. The Blue Earth river affords water power to several flouring mills in the neighborhood, a large steam mill recently erected at a cost of $90,000, with 13 run of stone, and 3 smaller mills of the same kind, 3 machine shops, a plow factory, feed-mill, planing-mill, woolen-mill, linseed oil works, and 2 pump factories comprise the steam-driven works of the city; but there are besides numerous industrial interests requiring no motive power, such as several carriage and wagon factories, four breweries (which shipped 3,000 barrels in 1879), a pottery, extensive brick-yards, etc. The entire business of Mankato in 1879 footed up $4,062,000, of which $1,416,000 came from manufactures. The flour product of the city and vicinity in the same year amounted to 75,000 barrels. The receipts for 1880 are estimated at 350,000 bushels wheat, 37,000 bushels oats, 25,000 bushels barley, 18,000 bushels corn, 2,000 bushels timothy seed, 1,000,000 pounds pork, 60,000 pounds hams, 30,000 pounds lard, most of which will be shipped eastward. The value of real and personal taxable property is placed at $5,000,000. There are two national banks in Mankato, with $120,000 and $70,000 capital respectively, and there is also a private bank. Mankato occupies an honorable rank as a seat of intelligence, culture and refinement, and her citizens are justly proud of the State Normal School in their midst—one of the three in the commonwealth—which yearly graduates numbers of teachers fully qualified for the instruction of the Minnesota youth. The faculty of the Mankato Normal School in 1879 numbered 8 professors, and the student ranks comprised 88 male and 151 female aspirants for pedagogical honors. A wood engraving of the State Normal School is presented on the opposite page. The city has also a fine graded school. Her expenditure upon public schools has been $32,750, and she employs a staff of 21 teachers. There is also a Roman Catholic College here, and the Sisters of Charity have a school erected on a commanding site overlooking the city. Mankato has also a public library. Journalism is represented by the Review (steam press), Democratic, the Free Press and Union, Republican, all weekly. There are Episcopal, Baptist, Congregational Methodist, Welsh Methodist, German Methodist, Presbyterian, Catholic, Christians, Evangelical Association, Evangelical Lutheran, Trinity Lutheran, Advent and Swedish Lutheran churches in the city. The exports are flour, wheat, butter and eggs (in great quantity), pork, linseed oil, brick, stone, lime and ginseng. The water power derived from the Minnesota, Blue Earth and Le Sueur rivers here is unexcelled for a radius of 10 miles. Direct railroad communication with Austin, St. Cloud, Red Wing and Minneapolis is expected this year. Land in the vicinity varies in price from $10 to $30 per acre. Timber is abundant. Telegraph, Northwestern and the private line of the S. M. Ry Co. Express, Am. Stage to Winnebago Agency, Tivoli, Little Cobb, Danville, Medo and Minnesota Lake, carrying mails tri-weekly. Eight mails daily. O. Brown, postmaster.

MARSHALL.

The seat of Lyon county, is an incorporated town upon the Redwood river, of 938 inhabitants, and a station on the W. & St. P. Ry, in Lake township, near the center of the county, 200 miles distant from St. Paul. It is a solidly and substantially built town with many fine brick business blocks, and is situated in the heart of as fine a prairie farming country as there is in the State. There are two banks in the town. The Lyon County Bank, capital $25,000, is an old established, trustworthy and conservative institution. There are four large lumber concerns here, several general and special stores, hotels, livery stables and mechanic shops, and one flour mill and one feed mill, driven by wind power. A railroad land office is located in the town. The churches are Congregational, Methodist Episcopal, and Episcopal, and there is a graded and private school. The Messenger, a weekly paper founded in 1874, is published here. Marshall is the receiving and distributing center of a region extending for 50 miles in every direction. Stage to Lynd, Marshfield and Granite Falls semi-weekly, and Redwood Falls daily. Telegraph, Northwestern. Express, Am. Daily mail. C. F. Case, postmaster.

MINNEAPOLIS.

Had the legislative sages who met in 1857 to decide upon a name for the embryo town at the gateway of the Mississippi, chosen any of the appellatives proposed—Lowell, Albion, Anoka, or All Saints—instead of Minneapolis, they could not have prevented the development into productive greatness and commercial strength which has made the city a marvel in an age of progressive wonders. They chose to adopt the bold combination, suggested by George D. Bowman, of the Dakota word Minne and the Greek polis meaning together "City of the Waters," and thus handed down to posterity a name which is in itself an entire description. Minneapolis is situated at the head of the navigable water of the Mississippi, at the outlet of the vast timber region of the Northwest and of the grand western granary, and year by year the influences which have combined to make her rich and great are at work to make her richer and greater. Her history, as histories go, dates from yesterday, so to speak. In 1837 the region was a wilderness, save for the Government mill erected in 1822 for the convenience of the garrison at Fort Snelling. In 1838, Franklin Steele, upon the ratification of the treaty by which the Indian lands between the Mississippi and the St. Croix were ceded to the Government, made the first claim, and built a "claim house" of logs on the eastern bank of the Mississippi, just abreast of the Falls of St. Anthony. Calvin A. Tuttle followed, further down toward the University, and after him Pierre Botineau, nearly opposite the head of Nicollet Island, who both erected log claim houses. French squatters next took up claims, which Mr. Steele purchased, and in 1847, when the land had been surveyed and put into the market, he entered it at the government price of $1.25 per acre, obtaining control of all the water power of the east channel of the river. In 1849, when the Territory of Minnesota was organized, the population of St. Anthony and Little Canada, then together, was reported at 571 souls, all told. The first lumber mill, one of two saws, was built in 1848. The town site of the "Village of St. Anthony's Falls" was first surveyed in 1849, and during the legislative session of 1850 the State University was located at St. Anthony, though its erection was not commenced for several years afterward. The first white child was born on April 30, 1851, and the first court of justice ever held in Minnesota organized here in 1849. In 1850 the population was 1,000. In 1854 the first flour mill at the Falls was established, and the first suspension bridge thrown across the Mississippi. In 1855 the Territorial legislature chartered the city of St. Anthony, and the first meeting of the council thus established was held on April 13th of the same year. In the same year the west side, which had been a portion of the military reservation of Fort Snelling, was put into the market and opened up for entry and settlement, and almost immediately developed from a community of "squatters," without title, into a thriving village most advantageously situated by nature, and rich in scenic beauty. In 1873 the east and the west sides were united in one city by legislative enactment, and the name of Minneapolis given in perpetuity.

Situated thus on both banks of the Mississippi, commanding the immense water power furnished by the eighty-two feet fall in the river, including the Falls of St. Anthony, which are in the heart of the city, a power before whose magnitude mere description utterly fails, Minneapolis has a perpetual industrial fortune in her hands. The power developed here is estimated as that of 100,000 horses, and such is the situation of the city that it is possible, by the application of capital, to make avail of every gallon of water passing over the Falls. The combined power has been calculated as of the capacity of grinding 2,000,000 bushels of wheat per day. Most of the power can be utilized, with present improvements, with from 40 to 60 feet head of water.

MANUFACTURING.

The flouring industry of Minneapolis is one of the most important in the country, and has been one of the principal factors in the development of the growth of the city. By the adoption of the "patent process," the spring wheat usually grown by Minnesota farmers—whose flour was, until within a few years, regarded as incapable of standing a warm or humid climate, or the test of a long sea voyage—has been ground into the highest grade of flour, and is now shipped to Europe, to South and Central America, and West Indian ports, with most satisfactory results. In the mills of Minneapolis, changes in the manufacture of flour are constantly going on, and very little of the machinery used as late as 1873 can now be found in operation. In no city in the Union are there so many flour mills, or is there so large an amount of capital used in flour milling. At the opening of the present year there were 25 mills in operation, with varying capacities, from 100 to 3,000 barrels of flour per diem. The Washburn "A" mill, standing on the site of the one destroyed by the explosion of May, 1878, is 244x100 feet, 9 stories high, with a capacity of 3,000 barrels daily. The Crown Roller is 124x144, and 8 stories high, with a capacity of 2,500 barrels, and the two are the largest and most complete mills in existence. As rollers are superseding burrs, the capacity is given in barrels, and, taking the figures of the Minneapolis Board of Trade report for 1880 as authority, the combined capacity of the mills of the city is 16,275 barrels per diem, while another mill of 3,000 barrels daily capacity is in course of construction. The following comparative statement of production and exports of flour for the years named, will be found of interest:

Year.	Production—Bbls.	Exports—Bbls.
1860	30,000
1865	98,000
1870	193,000
1873	585,000
1874	727,000
1875	843,000
1876	1,000,675
1877	935,544
1878	940,786	109,183
1879	1,551,789	442,598

The shipments have been made on through bills of lading, direct to foreign ports, without the intervention of eastern middlemen. The shipments for the present year will be much more extensive.

The falling off in 1877 and 1878 was due to the almost complete failure of the wheat crop in a large territory from which the mills drew their supplies. When all the mills in Minneapolis are in full running operation, they will require annually 25,000,000 bushels of wheat, or more than one-half the entire crop of the State. The flour and mill stuff business of 1879 amounted to $9,758,800, of which the export trade amounted to $3,150,000.

The grain trade of Minneapolis is mainly confined to wheat. A large amount of corn was shipped from Minneapolis to the seaboard in 1879 via Duluth and Lake Superior. The receipts of grain for the year ending December 31st, 1879, were:

	Bushels.
Wheat	7,991,913
Corn	144,200
Oats	235,500
Barley	75,600
Rye	16,500
Flax Seed	130,300

LUMBER.

The lumber interests of Minneapolis have the pine belt of the upper Mississippi valley to draw their supplies from, embracing all the pine lands west of Wisconsin, while west and northwest of the city lies the rich tract known as the "Big Woods," containing as fine a body of hardwood timber as there is in the Northwest. From the first settlement of the city the lumber trade has been a staple, contributing handsomely to its growth and prosperity. In 1876 the production footed up 200,371,277 feet, but owing to lack of snow in the pineries and water in the streams the cut fell off to 130,274,076 feet in 1878. In 1879 a larger quantity was manufactured, but still not as much as had been anticipated, owing to low water in the Mississippi and its tributaries retarding the driving of logs, so that it was late in the season before operations were commenced. As prices advanced 25 and 30 per cent. in consequence, the lumbermen were compensated for the delay. The total cut in the twelve lumber concerns of the city was 149,754,847 feet. On the 1st of January, 1880, the lumber in yard, in the hands of the 21 concerns of the city, was 89,572,229 feet. The total trade of the year amounted to $4,295,000.

BANKS.

There are 8 incorporated banks in Minneapolis, but the increasing manufacturing capacity of the city will require additional facilities at an early day. The banks, with their paid-up capital, are: First National, $600,000; Northwestern National, $500,000; Merchants' National, $150,000; Security, $750,000; City, $200,000; Hennepin County, $100,000; Farmers' and Mechanics' Savings, $100,000; Citizens', $50,000; total capital, $2,450,000. There are 3 private banks doing a regular banking business, and several firms acting as bankers and loan agents.

MISCELLANEOUS MANUFACTURES.

The phenomenal development of the Northwest has had the effect of greatly stimulating manufacturing industry in Minneapolis. The general revival of prosperity crowded the various factories and shops to the utmost limit, caused large additions to be made to several establishments, and favored the erection of new manufacturing concerns. The rush of immigration has created an active demand for all classes of building goods and farming implements.

Among the concerns employing labor largely are the boiler works, the engine works, the stove works, harvester works, plow factories, woolen mill, 2 paper mills, the linseed oil company, the several wood and furniture manufacturers, the fence works, sash, door and blind factories, Northwestern foundry and car wheel works, boot and shoe factory, clothing manufactory, the shops of the C., M. & St. P., and the M. & St. L. railways. There are a number of other establishments of greater or lesser volume, and activity in every department is represented as being the order of the day. The miscellaneous manufacturing trade of Minneapolis for 1879, footed up $8,155,100, wholesale, and the retail (estimated) $3,650,000, a total of $11,805,100, as compared with $4,802,300 in 1877.

WHOLESALE TRADE.

The wholesale trade of Minneapolis received 7 new accessions in 1879, in hats and caps, clothing, tobacco and cigars, fancy groceries, rubber goods, stationery and paper; a notion firm has entered the wholesale dry goods trade, and several retail houses have added jobbing to their business. About 200 travelers are on the road representing Minneapolis houses. The wholesale trade which in 1868 amounted to $100,000, in 1877 to $8,147,275, swelled in 1879 to $14,000,000.

THE RETAIL TRADE

of 1879, is officially reported as having developed marvelous growth. It is not confined to the city, but extends throughout the State and into Wisconsin, Iowa, Dakota and Nebraska, trade being done by sample and orders filled by mail or express. Every branch of trade is now represented by the 400 houses now doing business in the city, and the Board of Trade do not favor any increase for the present. The total retail business for 1879 is estimated at $12,500,000.

LIVE STOCK, HORSES AND HOGS.

During 1879 the total number of cattle handled was 25,000 head, besides sheep and veal calves, of a total value of $850,000. Cattle trade with Manitoba is largely increasing, and a movement is on foot to establish slaughter houses for dressing fresh meat for shipment to the seaboard. During the past year about 3,500 horses were sold in the city, of an estimated value of $550,000. The pork packing trade is increasing largely. About 25,000 head of hogs were handled in 1879, valued at $250,000.

BUILDING.

The impetus given to building by the revival of business was felt in Minneapolis by the erection of 6 mills, at a cost of $1,046,000; 3 elevators, $175,000; 3 railroad buildings, $230,000; Nicollet House improvements, $20,000; water power improvements, $15,000; factories, machine shops, storehouses and saw-mills, $200,000; 26 three and four-story brick and stone stores, $146,000; 7 two-story brick and stone stores, $15,500; 17 two-story wood stores, $16,000; 1 engine house, $6,500; 4 livery stables, $10,000; 1 school house, $10,000; 45 brick and wood residences, costing from $3,000 to $23,000, $249,000; 331 wood residences, $530,000; all other buildings, $130,000. The building of the year represents a frontage of 14,195 feet, and an outlay of $2,799,000. This expenditure makes the total of the city's business for 1879 foot up $62,801,513, as against $47,149,875, in 1878; $30,912,152 in 1877, and $21,017,819 in 1876.

RAILROADS AND SHIPMENTS.

Minneapolis is greatly favored in the matter of railroad communication in every direction. The C., M. & St. P. Ry has extended its H. & D. division west 45 miles to Ortonville, and the Dakota division to Big Stone Lake. The I. & D. division has been extended 150 miles, and graded 80 more, while it has completed a short 10 mile double track line to St. Paul. The line has in all 801 miles in operation in the southwest, connected with Minneapolis, and its machine shops in the city give permanent employment to 450 men. The company will build a road into the city this year from some point in McLeod county, making Minneapolis the terminus of its lines in Northwestern Minnesota and Dakota. The newly consolidated roads, known as the Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis & Omaha Ry, have bought $74,000 worth of grounds in Minneapolis for terminal facilities.

The St. P., M. & M. R. R., the reorganized St. Paul and Pacific, is extending its branches rapidly, and has now 660 miles of line in operation, connecting with the Canadian Pacific at Emerson. It has a single line between Minneapolis and St. Paul. The company has purchased the water power on the east front of the Falls of St. Anthony, for $425,000, and has obtained right of way for the extension of lines in the city, and sites for the construction of two additional bridges across the Mississippi, and for the erection of a large passenger depot at this point, designed for the use of all the railroads jointly.

The N. P. Ry is pushing ahead rapidly. The link to complete the line of the M. & St. L. from Minneapolis to Fort Dodge, has been completed. The St. P. & S. C. R. R., which has heretofore entered the city over the lines of the M. & St. L., is making arrangements for an independent entry, and also for a direct connection with the Union Pacific at Omaha. The Minneapolis Eastern, a new concern, has constructed a line reaching a large number of the mills in the city, saving all cartage on flour and grain, while the M. & St. L. has extended its track to all mills not heretofore accommodated, and the C., M. & St. P. has extended its tracks, connecting them with the roads leading to the mills. It has also erected a freight house 500 feet long. The Minneapolis & Northwestern narrow gauge, 62 miles long, to Hutchinson, McLeod county, is under progress. The Lyndale Ry, a local road for passengers only, runs from the City Hall to Lakes Calhoun and Harriet, 4¾ miles. The track is 3 feet gauge, and the motors are noiseless. The following statistics will show the growth of the railroad business centering at Minneapolis.

EDUCATION.

Minneapolis justly boasts of her educational institutions. The University of Minnesota is situated within her corporate limits, having been located by virtue of a territorial law. It has a main building 54x146, and assembly hall 90x60, a library of 13,000 volumes, a general museum, containing the collections of the geological survey, a professional staff of 15 persons and a student roll of 386. Instruction is free to all who can gain admittance by passing the preliminary examination. It went into actual operation in 1867, and has an endowment from State and Federal sources of $1,000,000.

The High School is the pride of the citizens. It is a splendid structure, 112x136, of imposing architectural design, contains 4 study rooms, and 12 recitation rooms, and cost $80,000. There are 13 ward schools, aggregating 94 recitation rooms, and affording seating accommodation for 5,500 pupils. The school enrollment is 5,301. The estimated value of school property is $400,000, and the number of teachers employed 116. Besides the State University and the public schools there are the Augsburg Theological Seminary, (Lutheran), Minneapolis Female Seminary, Curtiss Business College, 10 parochial schools, and 3 kindergartens.

CHURCHES.

There are in Minneapolis 68 church organizations, including missions, as follows: Advent, 2; Baptist, 10; Catholic, 7; Congregational, 5; Episcopal, 9; Friends, 2; Evangelical, 1; Hebrew, 1; Lutheran, 12; Methodist, 11; Presbyterian, 5; Swedenborgian, 1; Universalist, 1; Disciples, 1.

THE PRESS.

There are 20 papers and periodicals published here. The St. Paul Pioneer Press is published simultaneously in Minneapolis and St. Paul, and has a full corps of editors in the city. The other daily papers are the Evening Tribune, Mirror, and Times. The weeklies are the Farmer's Union, and Weekly Tribune, Mississippi Valley Lumberman and Manufacturer, the Citizen, Minnesota Statts Tidning, Budstikken, Freie Presse, Market Reporter, Tourist and Sportsman, Bibel Budet, Western Poultry Fancier's Journal. Monthly—Folkeblatt, Minnesota Farmer, Verdans Gang. Semi-Monthly—Lutheraneren. Quarterly—Kvartalskriftst.

HALLS AND HOTELS.

The public halls consist of the Market House and its halls, the Academy of Music, Pence Opera House, Harmonia Hall, and the halls of the various secret orders. The Young Men's Christian Association lease the second floor of the Market House, and have fitted it up with an auditorium for 1,500 persons, with stage and ante-rooms, parlors, reading and committee rooms.

The wants of the traveling public are catered to by 34 hotels, of which the Nicollet House stands at the head. The St. James is a very fine house. There are about 100 private boarding houses of all grades in the city.

A telephone exchange, with 300 members, is in active operation.

CIVIC GOVERNMENT.

Minneapolis is governed by a Mayor (A. C. Rand), and Common Council. The value of the property owned by the city is $1,625,686; the bonded debt is $1,205,400; the assessed valuation (about two-thirds), $23,415,000, and the tax levy for the present year 14 mills. The city has efficient water works, gas works, police and fire departments, and ample street railway accommodation. Its appointments, as a whole, are those of a first-class, well-governed city.

Communication between the eastern and western divisions of the city is had by a splendid suspension bridge built at a cost of $220,000, distant from the water 30 feet, with blue limestone towers 675 feet apart, and cables capable of sustaining a pressure of 4,860 tons.

The summer climate of Minneapolis is charming. The city is situated on a gently undulating plain, with bluffs on either side, which afford elegant sites for private residences. The Falls of St. Anthony are in the center of the city, while the city itself is in the center of the lake region, and within easy access of charming summer resorts. Minnehaha Falls, made famous by Longfellow, in the Song of Hiawatha, are 4 miles below the city. Lakes Calhoun, Cedar, and Harriet, may be reached by the Lyndale Ry., or by steamer. White Bear Lake, 14 miles distant, is a much frequented resort, where excellent fishing is to be had, while Lake Minnetonka is a picturesque lion which attracts thousands of tourists and excursionists every season. BUTLER'S

Patent Gang Saw Hangings

AND MILL PICKS,

Manufactured by H. C. BUTLER, MINNEAPOLIS, MINN.

My Saw Hangings increases the cutting capacity 15 to 20 per cent., making the lumber 25 per cent. better. For sawing one-inch lumber, no gauges are required. To change the thickness of lumber is but the work of a few minutes, and very simple.

They strain the saws evenly, and are not liable to get out of order. The gang never clogs with climbs. The extra amount of lumber sawed per day will pay for these Hangings in a short time. The use of these Hangings secure fully 20 per cent. additional wear of saws.

Although only recently patented, it has already found its way into the largest mills of the Northwest, and endorsements of its great value and economy are being from time to time received from those who have submited them to tests.

COLLEGE BLOCK,	WARNER'S BLOCK,
251, 253 and 255 Nicollet Ave.	Cor. Third and Wabasha Sts.
MINNEAPOLIS, MINN.	ST. PAUL, MINN.

These two Institutions receive the personal care and attention of the proprietor. who devotes his entire time and energies to the welfare of his pupils. They are established on a permanent basis and enjoy a patronage greater than that of any previous year, or of any similar school in the west.

These Colleges now occupy, in Minneapolis and St. Paul, two capacious halls, with numerous class rooms, all planned and furnished throughout expressly for the work of first class Commercial Schools. They have every appliance of real utility. and ample facilities in either city for TWO HUNDRED PUPILS.

The Course of Study has been materially enlarged and strengthened during the past year, and the greatest care has been exercised in the selection of teachers for the various departments.

THE GRADUATES OF THESE COLLEGES are always in demand as accountants and managers of business affairs, and whatever may be their calling in life, the education thus obtained is sure to be of service.

The time required to complete the course varies from six months to one year and longer, according to capacity, preparatory education and industry. The progress of one student is not regulated by that of others.

We do all in our power to aid our pupils while with us and after they leave the College, but we NEVER PROMISE SITUATIONS. The object of the College is the success of its students, and that object is best attained by training them to use their energies and abilities in helping themselves.

Students are received at either College, at any time, for full course or special branches.

For further information apply at the College Office or write to

The seat of Clay county, founded in 1870, when the county was an unbroken wilderness, is a substantially built, pleasantly situated city at the head of the navigable water of the Red River of the North, and a station on the N. P. R. R., at the point where it leaves the State. From its situation it is an important distributing center for Northwestern Minnesota and Eastern Dakota. It does an immense wheat business by rail and steamboat, and, being situated on an important timber bend, its lumber trade is heavy. Bruns & Finkle's steam flouring mills work up some 300 bushels of wheat daily. The city has an elevator of 100,000 bushels capacity, 2 brick yards, 2 general stores, 1 machine shop, 2 breweries, a number of wholesale and retail stores, 6 hotels, among which the Bramble House takes a decided lead, a newspaper office, from which the Moorhead Advocate (Rep.) is issued, a driving park, skating rink, and a full representation of the various professions and callings. The churches are Episcopal, Presbyterian, Catholic, Lutheran, Methodist, and Methodist Episcopal. The high school at present occupies the parlors of the Methodist Episcopal church, but a $20,000 school house is to be built this fall. There is besides a brick school house of 3 departments. A large amount of solid building is going on,

OWATONNA.

The seat of Steele county, a corporate city of upwards of 4,000 inhabitants, and one of the handsomest among the smaller cities of Minnesota, is situated a few miles north of the centre of the county at the intersection of the I. & M. division of the C., M. & St. P., and the W. & St. P. division of the C. & N. W. Rys. It is situated on the Straight river, which affords water power utilized by a grist-mill, has 4 flouring mills in all, 2 large grain elevators, several smaller ones, and is the central point of one of the richest farming counties in the west. A large amount of pork, live stock, farm produce and wheat is annually shipped. Two foundries and machine shops give employment to many mechanics, and 4 weekly newspapers are published in the town. Among Owatonna's educational institutions the Minnesota Academy, founded by the Baptist Society and conducted upon principles of broad liberality, occupies a high place. Its curriculum embraces a common English, an academic and college preparatory course, and its staff consists of 6 teachers. The civic system embraces the High school (cost $22,000), and several ward schools. The Sisters of St. Francis conduct a Catholic school. The churches are Methodist Episcopal, Congregational, Baptist, Presbyterian, Universalist, Catholic, Lutheran, German Reformed and Scandinavian. The First National Bank has a capital of $60,000 and a surplus of $12,000 ; the Farmers' National Bank has a capital of $60,000 and a surplus of $4,500. The town has a public square, a beautiful natural park of 25 acres, with mineral springs, and 2 good hotels, the Arnold and Park Houses. ROCHESTER.

One of the largest and most important cities of southern Minnesota, has a population of 5,103, and is the seat of Olmsted county. It is considerable of a railroad centre, being a station on the W. & St. P. division of the C. & N. W. Ry, while the Rochester & Northern Minnesota, the Plainview and the Chatfield roads run into the city. It is situated on the beautiful Zumbro river, whose fine water power here is not utilized. Its industries comprise 7 steam flouring mills, 2 planing mills and furniture factories combined, 2 foundries and a woolen mill. It has Methodist, Baptist, Presbyterian, Congregational, Episcopal, Universalist, Catholic, Lutheran, Norwegian, and German Methodist churches. Its public buildings are the Second Minnesota State Hospital for the Insane, built in 1877 at a cost of $75,000, the Olmsted county buildings, cost $50,000, the public school buildings, including the Central School and the Academy of Notre Dame de Lourdes, representing an outlay of $15,000. The graded school system of Rochester employs 19 teachers. There are 20 brick business blocks in the city representing an investment of over $2,000,000 capital, and the residences of the business men are equal to any in the State. Among the leading business houses are C. H. Roberts, manufacturer of house and school furniture, J. D. Blake & Co., dry goods and clothing, C. F. Massey, dry goods and tailoring; Kellogg & Johnson, dry goods, caps, boots and shoes; Cutting & Macombe, ladies' furnishing and fancy goods; W. W. Ireland, books and stationery; A.
